Arctic Red River Outfitters Ltd.
2017 Hunt Report

The spectacular, game-rich country of the North Mackenzie Mountains in Canada's Northwest Territories provides the perfect place for hunters of all ages and walks of life to enjoy true wilderness hunting the way it was meant to be.

At Arctic Red River Outfitters, we have always believed that there is much more to a great hunting experience than simply the harvesting of a trophy. Our entire crew of experienced professionals is committed to making your hunt an "adventure of a lifetime", along with giving you a chance to harvest a great trophy, and the diversity of our area allows us to tailor your adventure to suit your personal goals. Our exclusive, 10,000 square mile hunting area is one of the most remote hunting destinations in North America, contains no roads or trails, and is completely undisturbed by development.

The 2017 season was very hot and dry, with temperatures breaking records through July. The sheep hunting was absolutely spectacular throughout the season, and hunters enjoyed an abundance of large, old rams due to good lamb crops 10-12 years ago, combined with the recent mild winters and early springs. The average age of the rams taken was nearly 11 years old, and the average length was just under 39". The caribou hunting was fairly typical through the August and early September hunts, but our later September hunters had to contend with a fair stretch of poor visibility due to snow and fog. Many record book bulls were taken, up to 450" B+C gross. We harvested seven moose again this season, and we continue to see a very strong, growing population with very good calf survival.

MOUNTAIN HUNTING AT ITS FINEST

2017 Hunt Report

1. Cody Voermans (MT) had an excellent hunt with guides Kent Robertson and Ben Stourac, and went home with this giant 41"ram.

2. Steve Harris (UT) put on the miles on a cross-country hunt in hot weather with guide Andrew Meiklejohn, and bumped into this twister 43.5" ram late in the hunt, as well as a dandy caribou (photo 39 inside).

3. Tom Fischer (ID) wore out a bunch of boot leather with guide Ben Stourac before taking this super heavy, long, high scoring ram. He also took home a dandy caribou (photo 37 inside).

4. Rebekah Miller (MT) harvested her first ram on an early season hunt – a 42" beauty! She was accompanied by her husband Derrick, and guide Kelly Robertson.
